THE GARDEN NEXT DOOR

Bored and hot on a lazy summer day, three young children watch as birds, bees, and butterflies zoom past them, over their fence, and into their neighbor's mysterious yard. But why are there no birds or bugs in their yard? Why does the neighbor's yard glow with fireflies at night, while their yard is dark? Well, the kids are determined to find out ... and maybe make some changes to bring a little nature to their backyard.

Talk About The Garden Next Door:

"A charming introduction to the spectacular biodiversity that can flourish just beyond our back doors if given a chance. The Garden Next Door provides important insight into the under-appreciated diversity of insects, which sets this book apart from so many others."

- Dr. May Berenbaum, National Medal of Science laureate and entomology professor at the University of Illinois

"I wish all families would read this gentle call to action, take it to heart, and do their part to share their land with their own wild neighbors."

- Nancy Lawson, author, The Humane Gardener

"This colorful little book follows a pair of siblings who, along with their friend ... discover the key to attracting pollinators."

-Lisa Doseff, author, Grandma Lisa's Humming, Buzzing, Chirping Garden

"... a joyful book for children that will likely inspire their parents too!"

- Kim Eierman, founder, EcoBeneficial LLC, and author of The Pollinator Victory Garden: Win the War on Pollinator Decline with Ecological Gardening

"What an important and timely message about community, land stewardship, and the positive change small actions and children can bring."

- Heather Holm, pollinator conservationist and author, Pollinators of Native Plants

"This admirable debut features a delightfully diverse cast of friends determined to plant their own garden. Educators and parents can pair it with books showcasing native plants for their own region."

- Deborah Hopkinson, author, Butterflies Belong Here

"Hiding behind the simplicity and beautiful illustrations of The Garden Next Door is one of the most important messages of our time. Life is where the native plants are!"

- Dr. Doug Tallamy, founder of Homegrown National Park and wildlife ecology professor at the University of Delaware
